Walk Around the World

Have you noticed that we really are walking around the world? The map displayed in the breezeway currently shows that we have walked to China! China is a very large country, so we need your help walking through it and back to Maryland, where we belong. This effort ends with Sunday, November 15. Please turn in your steps to Human Resources by November 19 to be eligible for the prize drawing. The prize is two tickets to Sight and Sound Theater in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, on your choice of dates, plus a $25 gas card to help you get there.

The point of this program has been to encourage exercise and better health for all of us. Let’s maintain our walking and exercise of all kinds even after November 15.

Fall Into Winter and Start the Bird-feeding Frenzy

Bird feeding is “in,” and it’s easy to see why. Attracting birds to your backyard is a relatively low-cost way to relax, enjoy nature, and beautify your winter surroundings. And it can be done by people of virtually all ages and levels of physical ability.

Winter weather is hard on birds. Tiny birds must eat a third to three quarters of their weight each day. When the temperature dips below zero, easy meals at a feeder can mean the difference between life and death.

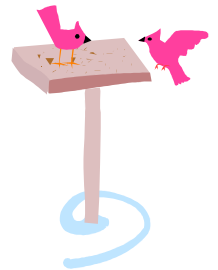

It’s important to stock your feeder with high-quality foods that will provide birds with the most fat, nutrients, and energy. Look for a feed like Cole’s that packs nutrition, preserves freshness, and gives you the most feed for your dollar. The feed is nitrogen-purge packaged, just like potato chips, to ensure freshness and insect-free feed.

Cole’s Wild Bird products offer a good selection of suet cakes formulated to attract certain bird varieties and the largest number of varieties.

To cater to seed-loving birds, try Cole’s Nutberry Suet. It’s a unique seed blend mix of premium fruits, preferred nuts, nutritious insect suet kibbles, and whole kernel sunflower meats, which appeal to fruit- and insect-loving songbirds.

Birds, like humans, do have food preferences. Feed them what they like, and they’ll keep coming back for more.
